Week of Apr. 12 - Apr. 16, 2021

ELA - Yau

We will continue reading Revolution is Not a Dinner Party this week. In Chapters 5-6, students will continue to work on comprehension and summarizing. We will also focus on characterization this week to dig into some of the characters we have met.

Asynchronous time should be spent re-reading each chapter this week as students complete their assignments and study for Friday's test. .

315 Reading meets DAILY from 8:10AM but on Wednesdays we meet at 7:45AM.

Math - Agostinelli

Our Dreambox challenge continues! All students complete 5 lessons per week. In math class, we will focus on multiplying fractions by fractions and connecting this process to areas of rectangles. As we build toward the standard algorithm for multiplying fractions, it is important for students to break down each part to solidify their conceptual understanding.

Science - Yau

Modeling Matter Unit:

Students continue to gather evidence to help answer the Investigation Question: What happens to the molecules of two liquids when you mix them together? They will use simulations on Amplify.com and the All Aboard Model to focus deeply on the properties of molecules as they investigate mixing at the molecular level.

315 Science Meets DAILY from 11:00 AM but on Wed. we meet at 10:00AM

Social Science - Yau

WK 19 of our Studies Weekly curriculum covers articles about how the nation expanded across the continent and came under the control of the US government. They will learn about the daily life of the pioneer people, Texas becoming part of the US, and the war with Mexico. Movement and settlement are a result of geographic, government, religious, cultural and economic factors.
